UBLICK Benefits deserve publick Gratitude and Ac-knowledgments; those that have diffinguish'd themfelves as the Friends and Benefactors of Mankind, are undoubtedly most justly entitled to our Esteem and Veneration; it is the best Return we are able to make, il the Obligations we have received, and perhaps rest and exalted Minds, the only one that is

No the Honour and Reverence that we owe to while they continue among us, are equally to their Memory and to their Posterity, when haverun the Race of Glory which was prescribed en; as their great and illustrious Actions, derive used Bleffings on their Country many Ages after themselves are ro more, their Names and Virtues never to be forgot, but to be preserved in afing Remembrance by all fucceeding Times.

e confider how few, among those who have om to Empire, have employed the Means Providence has put into their Hands for the f their People; but on the contrary, how far to me Defiruction of those, whom they ought a protected and preserved; I say, if this be coulder'd, how venerable and facred ought the yof those good Princes to be held, who went the Chardians and Defenders of the Protection of en the Guardians and Defenders of the Rights berties of Mankind.

Liberties of Britain have been several Times subsetties of Britain have been leveral Times uping; our Anceftors have in vain pleaded am, their Privileges and Immunities, derived from Time immemorial, and flowing from the force with the King's Prerogative and the of the Crown; that Prerogative, and that have, notwithstanding, like a Whirlpool, ed up all the lessers of Liberty, till less had arbitrary Power.

common and ordinary People, who, in teper's Opinion, had fuch Stallow Apprerender them totally incapable of penethe deep Resolution of a Prince, were the England in Parliament assembled, who they are now, a Body, composed of the off eminent Men in the Kingdom, and ame undoubted Right, as they have at inquire into all publick Transactions; only was of another Sentiment, and they ought not to make any Matters of their Debates, but such as they had to do; and that it was far beyond their Reach and Capacity, and a high Dishonour to his Prerogative Royal, for them to meddle with any thing concerning his Government, and the deep Atfairs of State; and that if they presum'd to do so, he believed himself to be very free and able to punish any Man for fuch a Misdemeanor, as well during the Sitting of the Parliament, as after, for the, fays he, you were invited to advise forthwith on a Supply for keeping the Forces in the Palatinate from disbanding, and to foresee the Means for the raising and maintenance of an Army against the Spring; what Instruce can be made upon this, that you are to advise thus in what we are to do? The Difference, says he, is no greater, than if we would tell a Merchant, that we had great Need to borrow Monry from him for raising an Army; that thereupon it should fellow, that we were bound to follow his Advice in the Direction of the War, and all Things depending thereupon.

CHARLES the First trod in his Father's Steps; he held the same Maxim, too that he was accountable to none but God: and his whole Reign was nothing but none but God; and his whole Reign was nothing but a continued Series of Violence, Oppression and Tyranny; without any Regard to the Laws or Constitution of the Kingdom; which he looked upon to be the Creatures of his Will, and subject to be moulded into what Shape and Form he pleased to give them. He govern'd more like a Sultan than an English Prince; and his Privy Council, under his Influence, exercised all the Cruckles and Terrors of the Divan.

Nor did high Rank and Title secure any one from the Effects of this absolute Power which the Prince assumed; all Orders and Degrees of Men were alike subject to the uncontroulable Will and Pleasure of the Sovereign. He not only issued out his Royal Mandates, without any other Authority, for raising Taxes on the People, and fin'd and imprison'd those that resused to pay them; but also by virtue of the same Prerogative, he published a Proclamation, commanding the Nobility and Gentry, who had no Employments at Court, to depart from Town, and keep their Residence at their Houses in the Country; and a great Number of Persons of the first Distinction, among whom were several Ladies of Quality, were prosecuted in the Star Chamber for not obeying it. were alike subject to the uncontroulable Will and not obeying it.

THE same Methods of Government were pursued under the two succeeding Reigns, as had been under the two former : Charles the Second took large Strides towards making himself absolute. He seized the Liberties of the City of London into his Hands; and before he fuffer'd them to act as a Corporation again, he reserved to himself the Approbation of the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Recorder, Common Serjeant, Town Clerk, Coroner, Steward of Southwark, and others, which was in effect the same thing as having the No-mination of all the Principal Officers of the City himself, and leaving them nothing but the Name of a Franchise.

Non did he stop here. He caused several eminent Citizens of London to be projecuted under Pretence of a Riot at the Election of Sheriffs; tho a very able a Riot at the Election of Sherists; tho a very able and learned Historian says, there was no Disorder in the whole Progress of the Matter; but nevertheless they were convicted by the packed Juries of those Times; and fined in considerable Sums. Pilkington, who had been Sherist of the City, was cast in a Hundred thousand Pounds Damages for reslecting on the Duke of York; and Sir Patience Ward, who had been Lord Many; was designed to have been set in the Pillory Mayor, was defign'd to have been set in the Pillory for a pretended Perjury, if he had not gone out of the Way, to avoid so shameful and ignominious a

In this Manner did that Prince treat the City of Lendon, and those who had gone thro' the highest Offices, and held the supream Magistracy of it; and James the Second design'd to have finished the Work, which his Brother had begun, if he had not been stopped in his Career, by the Interposition of that illustrious Prince, who in Pity to the Cries and Interposite of an injury of White. Intreaties of an injured Nation, releued us from that us; to him we owe the Security of our Properties, our Liberties, and Lives, which would otherwise have been at the Mercy of a Tyrannical and Deferring Court of the Security of the Properties, our Liberties of the Security of the Properties of the Security of the Properties, and Lives of the Security of the Properties, our Liberties of the Security of the Properties of the Security of the Properties of the Security of the Properties of the Properties of the Security of the Properties spotick Government; to him we owe the Succession of the Crown in the present Royal Family, by which the Freedom and Happiness that we possess, will be transmitted to our latest Posterity: And in order to preserve in our Minds a just Idea of the Value of those Gifts that we have received from him, let us now and then recollect what our Ancestors suffered under the Race of the Stewarts, and what we enjoy under the august House of Brunswick.

Edinburgh, Nov. 18. We hear from Cambleton in the Shire of Argyle, that about the Beginning of this Month a Vetfel run upon a Rock in the Island of Gigha near that Place, bound as the Master gave out, from some Part of the West Indies for the Madeiras, and thence to London; she had on board a good many Pipes of Madeira Wine and Boxes of Cordecitron, with some Bales of other Goods: The Country People seized on a great Part of the Cargo, and carried it off, at which the Master seemed very indisferent; the Sheriff depute of Argyle, who was then at Cambleton, having Information of this, went with the Collector of the Customs in Search of the Goods so carried off, and we hear 15 Pipes of the Madeira Wine, and 20 Boxes of the Cordeciron are recovered: The Ship being afterwards examined by the Sheriff, and feveral Things being found on board rendering her very suspicious, the Master having no Cocquet nor Carpenter's Bill, he with his Crew were all put under Arrest by the Sherist, as Admiral, on Suspicion of Piracy, or that he intended to carry away the Ship and Cargo. There was fome Guns on board, but in very bad Order; the Vessel is about 90 or 100 Tons, and the Rigging mostly destroy'd, either by bad Weather or Design. We shall soon have a more particular Account of this Affair.

Tuesday last the Right Hon. the Earl of Ila, accompanied by the Right Hon. the Earl of Crawford, Lord Carmichael, &cc. fer out hence for London.

On the 17th Inft. died at her Country Seat near Glasgow, Dame Anna Stewart, the Widow of Sie James Stewart of Coltness, Baronet, a Lady of great Virtue and Piety, very much regretted by her Friends, and all who had the Honour of her Acquaintance: She was the Daughter of the Lord President of the Selfion; and has left Issue a Son, the present Sir James, and Five Daughters, whereof the Eldest is married to Thomas Calderwood of Poltoun, Esq;

martied to Thomas Calderwood of Poltoun, Efq;
From Kilkenny in Ireland, we have feveral Accounts of the Loyalty of the Gentlemen of that Country, on the Anniversary of his Majesty's Birthday, particularly at Huntingbrook, where there was a numerous Assembly at the House of Patrick Walsh, Esq; After Supper they drank several Loyal Healths, and concluded the Night with a Ball.

We hear that a Treaty of Marriage is on Foot, and will soon be consumated, between Charles Sandford, of Sandford Court, Esq; and Miss Smith, a near Relation to the Bishop of Ossory, a Lady of great Beauty, Merit and Fortune.

great Beauty, Merit and Fortune.

Northampton, Nov. 22. On Thursday last the Three Troops of the Regiment of Horse commanded by Lieutenant General Evans quarter'd here, were drawn up on our Market Hill, and fired three Vollies in Honour of the Birth of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

On Saturday last one Richard Annesley, was committed to our Gaol for House-breaking. Reading, Nov. 22. Saturday John Adams, who fometimes pretends his Name to be Elmer, and William Harris, who fometimes fays his Name is Gaddington, were committed to Gaol by the Mayor of this Corporation, for forging a Certificate under the Hands and Seals of Richard Hooper, Joseph Moyle and Joseph Hinksman, Esqrs; three of his Majesty's Intreaties of an injured Nation, relicted its from that Slavery and Mifery which were preparing for us; and fixed the Conflitution of Britain upon fuch a Bafis, as nothing but Factions and Divisions among ourselves can destroy.

Ho w dear therefore ought the Memory of that great and excellent Monarch to be to all true Lovers of their Country, and how highly ought we to effect those invaluable Blessings that he has left all well-disposed People, as Objects worthy of Compassion.

Adams feys he is a Cooper, and lately work'd with one Mr. Fuffel of Winchester : Harris pretends to have been a Farmer at Halo.

From Wotton Rivers we are inform'd, that Farmer John Gale was robbed on Malborough Forest the 10th Inft. by two Rogues, who heat and wounded him in so cruel a Manner, that he died the next Day. When they attack'd him, he made a flout Refiftance; but a Person who was with him taking to his Heels, they overpower'd the Farmer, and after-wards made after the Person who run away, and robbed him of thirty Shillings.

From Eastmean in the County of Southampton, that Farmer Evans of that Place had a Sow barrow'd of thirteen Pigs, one of which refembled a human Creature; its Head and Face were like that of a Child; its Fore Legs like Arms, with Fingers and Nails lying a cross its Breast; and the Hind Feet were shap'd like the Feet of an Infant.
